

Health at Work Network

Andrew Gilbey General Manager

Andrew is the General Manager for the NHS Health at Work Network, and has worked in and around NHS occupational health for over 25 years. Andrew has a business background in OH, and after joining the NHS OH team in York, he eventually led the Service there. In 2010, Andrew joined NHS Plus, a Department of Health OH Project, as their Operations Director. A few years later, Andrew founded Syngentis, an OH Community Interest Company, with a number of his colleagues and ran the organisation as its Executive Director.

More recently, alongside his NHS Network role, Andrew has operated as an OH Management Consultant, advising organisations across all sectors how to get the best out their OH teams and/or providers. He has also worked as a Lead Assessor for the Faculty of Occupational Medicine's SEQOHS accreditation scheme since its inception in 2010.

Andrew is passionate about quality, encouraging others to share good practice, and the power and benefits of collaborative working.
